Carwash benefits Pagerly family

As vehicle after vehicle lined up for Friday's carwash at the Sinking Spring Playground, Lane Faccioli, Troy Corson and Ryan Enoch ran up the hill with their sponges in hand.

Lane of West Lawn and Troy of Sinking Spring, both 8, and Ryan, 13, also of Sinking Spring, were among hundreds of people who came together for the carwash and a bake sale to raise money for Berks County Deputy Sheriff Kyle D. Pagerly's family.

"I wanted to help," Ryan said.

"It's the community coming together," said Greg Shuman, a borough public works employee who volunteered his time, too.

Organized by the playground's summer program, the event had raised almost $5,000 only two hours after it began.

"We've washed over 100 cars so far," playground leader Hillary Shade said. "And we'll be here until we fall over or until the last car is washed."

By midafternoon when rain intervened, more than $11,000 had been raised.

Fellow playground leader Theresa Johnson said a carwash fundraiser is an annual event that was repurposed after Pagerly was killed in a shootout last week.

"(Our program) preaches about what a hero is and we thought Kyle was a hero," she said.

Pagerly's family was represented at the event by his stepmother, Lisa Pagerly, who wore a T-shirt and two bracelets honoring her stepson.

"It's very overwhelming," she said of the fundraiser, which also will benefit charities Kyle Pagerly supported. "The support we've had from the community and everyone, it's amazing. We're so grateful."
